

Residential Care

Monash Health has five residential homes in the south eastern suburbs of Melbourne. Although each is different and provides different services, they all have highly qualified staff and welcoming communities. The goal in each of our homes is to help clients maintain their independence and protect their personhood.

Whether clients need a little care or a lot of care, choosing Monash Health provides clients with access to a range of tailored services which are designed around the client and adapted as client's needs change.
